Missed Opportunities

I have sat at the airport departure gate dozens of times waiting for my flight while watching the people scurry past as they head to their destinations. Today is different because I feel like I am the only one in the terminal. Yesterday I got a call that my Mom was in the Hospital for a routine procedure and lapsed into a coma. What happens if she never wakes up? It has been almost a year since I have last visited her because every time I try to make plans something gets in the way. When I call to let her know how sorry I am for cancelling my trip she always says she understands how difficult things are and she says she loves me. I can hear the disappointment in her voice but she never lets on. To make it up to her I tried calling more often but I know that is more for me than her. Lord I wish I would have been a better Daughter. Momma has always been there for me and I let her down. Jesus, please place your hand of healing upon my Mother. Please don't take her without me having the chance to tell her how much I love her. I am sorry. My flight is about to board and my eyes are red. I need to pull myself together and leave it in His hands.

In all of our lives we are presented with many opportunities. We are given the opportunity to Love and to be Loved. We are given the chance to Bless someone and to be Blessed. We are also taught that we should love one another as Jesus loved us. None of these actions should be reactive but proactive. Unfortunately there are those who take the position I will only love you if you first love me or I will only help someone if there is something in it for me.

Beloved, let us love one another, for love is of God; and everyone who loves is born of God and knows God.
